The Package of Seeds

I paid a dime for a package of seeds
And the clerk tossed them out with a flip.
"We've got 'em assorted for every man's needs,"
He said with a smile on his lip,
"Pansies and poppies and asters and peas
Ten cents a package, and pick as you please."

Now seeds are just dimes to the man in the store,
And the dimes are the things that he needs;
And I've been to buy them in seasons before,
And have thought of them merely as seed,
But it flashed through my mind as I took the this time,
"You've a dime's worth of power which no man can create,
You've a dime's worth of life in your hand;
You've a dime's worth of mystery, destiny, fate,
Which the wisest cannot understand.
In this bright little package, now isn't it odd?
You've a dime's worth of something know only to God."

YOUR GOVERNMENT

- by donald a. smith

EDMONTON - The question of who should drink what, where and when, blossomed out as the major issue in the Alberta legislature again last week as the government's amendments to the Liquor Act came up for debate before second reading.

It cut across party lines as four Social Credit members supported a CCF amendment to the bill requesting a legislature committee to study the problem and report to the next session. The government members were Glen Johnston, Ponoka, F. C. Colborne and Mrs. Rose Wilkinson, both Calgary members, and Dr. J. D. Ross, Edmonton. It also was supported by the four Liberal members, including J. R. DeFosses, Grouard member, and R. Earl Ansley (Ind. SC-Leduc).

With most of the Social Crediters lining up with the government, the amendment was defeated 43 to 10.

A Liberal amendment on the bill, calling for an open study by the agriculture committee of the whole house, which would allow the calling and questioning of witnesses, was defeated by a voice vote. Thus the bill was given second reading and will be up for third reading this week.

Comments of some of the rural members included:

J. E. Clark (SC-Stettler): "My constituents do not want further liquor outlets."

Chester Sayers (SC-Camrose): Didn't care if Calgary and Edmonton got mixed drinking, but couldn't see that further outlets would reduce the abuse of liquor.

Mr. Ansley: A recent meeting of his constituents decided there would be fewer problems with fewer restrictions. The present act cannot be enforced.

Of more interest to rural members than the liquor bill was the agriculture committee's study on marketing boards. The committee sat three days last week and heard submissions by

Rev. J. A. Wingblade (SC-Wetaskiwin): Should be no let-down of restrictions. It would lead to more temptation. "I hate to think of liquor in bars and restaurants."

EDMONTON - Amid a shower of shredded paper, thrown from the press gallery, the first session of the 12th Alberta legislature ended last Thursday. The 61-member house sat on 31 days, during 6 weeks, passed 127 bills and approved the government's budget of more than $174,000,000 in record-breaking expenditures.

Hon. J. J. Bowlen, lieutenant-governor, wearing a dark Homburg when he walked into the legislative chamber, gave royal assent to the proceedings of the past weeks and commended the members for "earnest devotion to public duty". Then through Provincial Secretary C. E. Gerhart, he proclaimed the session prorogued.

The most hotly debated issue of the session, the government's new liquor act received third and final reading on the day of proroguing. Early in the week, the house used most of an evening session and part of the following afternoon in debating the bill. At the evening session the members sat until midnight.

The disappointment of some members that the new act does not provide for more liberal drinking regulations, was shown in request of Liberal Leader J. Harper Prowse for an English "pub" system and the question by Calgary's Liberal member Hugh John MacDonald as to why there should be a connection between sleeping and eating facilities.

A Liberal amendment, that would have allowed the Liquor Control Board to "experiment" with variations in liquor legislation, was defeated by the house, then Premier Manning contended that it would mean pressure groups would badger the board for changes.

Attorney-General Lucien Maynard, replying to Mr. MacDonald, said the hotels need the added revenue from beer sales to help maintain good standards, while restaurants do not.

The attorney-general had the dub-

the Alberta Federation of Agriculture and the egg handlers.

The AFA brief, submitted by President Roy C. Marler, asks that legislation be passed to set up an egg marketing board on an experimental basis. The federation believes this would prove so successful that other boards would be established to market all other farm produce but wheat, which is handled by the Canadian Wheat Board. These products were worth $300,000,000 last year.

The egg wholesalers contend that "any organized attempt to evade the law of supply and demand is doomed to failure."

K. V. Kappler, second vice president of the AFA, told the committee that an egg board could have held egg prices at a higher level last year, so that more producers would be in the business to supply the 1953 demand. If these producers were operating there would be no egg shortage and consequent price increase this year, he said.

The committee finished hearing the briefs and will meet again this week. To come before the committee is a proposal by N. W. Dushenski (CCF, Wellington) to set up farm produce marketing boards.

Final approval of the government's proposed spending of $149,035,630 was $12,857,623 were approved during the week. The expenditures are to be voted under the Appropriation Act, which has been introduced and given first reading. Progressive Conservative and Liberal motions for setting up committee to study provincial-municipal financial relations were defeated by resounding majorities. Premier Manning said the government's municipal aid program has been under way for four years. He did not believe the proposed committee could serve any "useful purpose". Highways Minister Gordon Taylor (Alexandra) said consideration is being given to the possible construction of concrete and reinforced concrete highways. Signs point to the session being completed Wednesday. None of the members are anxious to see it carried on after Easter.

An Open Letter to the Citizens of Raymond

Since taking over the dairy business here from Alma on August 1st, 1952, we have endeavored to give satisfactory service to the milk users of our town. To the best of our knowledge we have done so.

At the present time the situation here is such that we find it extremely difficult to justify the continuance of our milk delivery. We have been offered a very good price for our milk elsewhere and unless we are given some protection by the Town Council with regard to people selling milk we feel that we must accept this proposition.

For your protection our dairy and milk is inspected regularly by a Provincial Inspector, and all we ask is that we be given the protection of a Town of Raymond Dairy License.

MISS LILA ENGBERG

SPRING SUPPERS

In Spring the family appetite picks up but suppers are harder to plan. How can we get variety in our lunch and our supper menus?

Miss Joyce Lewis, Nutrition Specialist, Alberta Department of Agriculture, says that for persons doing very heavy work the third meal may be just another dinner. But if meat and potatoes are served again for supper, don't forget the other vegetables. These are the foods that should be included in a good meal:

1. A protein food such as meat, fish, eggs, cheese or dried beans.
2. A fruit or vegetable or both if both have not been included in the dinner.
3. Milk - adults need at least ½ pint per day.
4. Bread (or rolls, biscuits, muffins, etc.) with butter.

Casserole dishes make easy supper dishes. This is a good way to use leftovers - vegetables, meats and milk. You can produce many combinations. Imagination is the keynote to good meal planning. You do not need recipes but here is one from the free pamphlet "Economical Luncheon and Supper Dishes":

Sausages or Weiner Vegetable Scallop

- (4 servings)
- 4 medium potatoes.
 - 4 medium carrots.
 - ¼ cup chopped onion.
 - ¾ lb. lightly cooked sausages or weiners, or diced bologna.
 - Hot milk.

Cut vegetables in thin slices (especially if cold carrots used). Slice the weiner or cooked sausages, or split lengthwise. Arrange alternate layers of vegetables and meat in a greased baking dish, drugging each layer of vegetables with flour and sprinkling with salt and pepper (have top layer vegetables). Pour in hot milk to cover. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 1½ hours until tender.

A Good Fit

How that Spring suit or coat fits is very important in making a good buy. Even if the color, fabric, style and price are what you want it pays to think twice before you buy a garment that doesn't fit well. The fit will influence the wearing quality, comfort and appearance.

If alterations must be made consider whether they will change the line or style of the garment. If you are doing the job yourself be sure you can do a professional job. If a dressmaker is to do it, consider the added cost, and make sure it is well done.

Try walking, sitting and moving the arms when trying a suit or coat. They may look well when standing but may not fit comfortably in action.

Food Storage

How long do you keep your cold meat before it shows signs of spoilage? Look for next week's column for storage time for certain foods.

NO RUSH—For every seed wasted because it was planted too late, there are at least a dozen lost through being put in too early. Perhaps it is because most of our ancestors came from warmer countries than Canada that we are inclined to rush things too fast. Of course it is pleasant and natural to get outside with a spade just as soon as the sun starts to get warm. But so long as the soil is the least bit muddy and there remains a real threat of serious frost, it is well to take things easy. As a matter of fact for the great majority of plants there is no real growth until spring has definitely arrived and both air and soil are warm.

Of course there are some exceptions. One can hardly get grass seed, sweet peas, the first radishes and spinach, the first garden peas and all kinds of shrubbery, vines and trees, planted too early. These go in just as soon as the soil is fit to work. With the rest, however, one is well advised to be patient.

At the end of the planting season, one should be patient too. In most parts of Canada one can go on planting and should go on planting right up to early July. For a succession of really tender vegetables, that is the only way to operate. One plants a first sowing early, then two or three weeks later, a second sowing, and after that there is usually plenty of time for a third or fourth at similar intervals.

Fined the Better—There is nothing the average seed likes better than a bed of finely worked soil. Of course moisture and fertility will be necessary, too, but it is almost impossible to over-emphasize the importance of having the soil fine. Especially is this so when seed to be sown is tiny like that of lettuce, carrots, alyssum or portulaca. If the seed bed is coarse and lumpy it will be impossible to keep out air and either the seeds will not germinate at all or they are liable to produce only weak plants. It will pay well to run rake or cultivator through a few extra times.

Just to make sure a fine seed bed for vegetables like carrots and lettuce and particularly where the land is heavy, many gardeners scoop out a shallow trench along the row and fill in with some specially prepared fine loam or humus. The improvement in germination, where this extra precaution is taken, will be astonishing.

These Will Help—And speaking of heavy soils, it should be remembered that there are many ways now of improving these. The old standby of course is well rotted manure. If one is lucky enough to be able to get this in quantity, it is well still the very best soil conditioner and enricher. Ladle on in a big way and it will make a fine garden out of almost any kind of soil. One disadvantage, of course, is that manure is often filled with weed seeds. When that is so it would be best to pile somewhere for a year or so and then apply.

Even without manure, however, there are other things that can be used. One of these is home made humus, which is simply rotted down vegetable refuse, like leaves, grass clippings, weeds and even clean garbage. This can be dug directly or piled in a corner, covered with layers of earth, watered occasionally and allowed to rot.

The new chemical soil conditioner, too, will break down the heavy clay and do the job overnight. Moreover the effect will last for at least several years.

Protection—One can safely rush the season for a few early tomatoes, hills of melons or cucumbers by planting or setting under special oiled paper, plastic or glass caps. Most seed stores carry these things which are about the size and shape of the old fashioned straw hat or cow breakfasts. These will furnish ample protection against even severe frost and by using them one can get a few tender things started two or three weeks ahead of the usual time.

Briton has lost the Battle of Trafalgar, a solemn House of Commons has been told. And right under Lord Nelson's nose, too.

Agricultural Minister Sir Thomas Dugdale admitted that the war against the 40,000 starlings which roost nightly in the square around the admiral's column in London's West End, had not gone at all according to plan.

In fact, he told cheering MPs the casualty list for the enemy force so far reads: "One starling injured. Fell by accident."

Little Glenn cleaned snow from the front walk of a next-door neighbor and received 25¢ for his work.

The family didn't hear about it until at the supper table and so his grandmother said, "Glenn, I am so proud of you working—and it's the first money you ever earned outside of the home. I intend to put it in my diary."

He quickly replied, "No, grandmother—you can't do that for I have already put it in my savings bank."
